”. La preocupación de la señora forma parte de la tradición internacional. En una ocasión, cuando vivía en su casa de Vancouver, los familiares de mi pareja, amigos, muchos cubanos, vinieron a verla. No sé qué quisieron decirle en español. Nosotros hablamos un español corriente. Cuando era niña, mis tíos hablaban lenguas extranjeras, porque visitaban a sus padres. Mi padre tuvo tanto interés que, después de un tiempo, empezó a traducir “Hala, OA” [¡Hola!] con sus propios y oscuros idiomas. Ahí no había problema. Antes de irme para Francia, me quedé a vivir unos meses más en Vancouver, porque no podía conciliar mi vida —tanto técnica como profesional— con la de mi marido. En aquella época estaba muy enamorada. Eran unas fechas muy críticas, con una política de depuración: había arrestos y reprimendas, y no era seguro viajar y ser metido en algún lugar de la horca. Acabé dejando a mi marido porque sabía lo que me deparaba. El día que llegué a Mérida, sé que me salí de salir. No estaba bien. El ambiente era muy rudo, y lo disfruté. Me pusieron a trabajar en una empresa de ventas. Me di cuenta de que iba a pasarla muy mal. La mayoría de la gente que tenía ahí no era profesional. Trabajaban sin jornal. La tía que me daba de comer me daba la comida a otras mujeres, que no tenían casa y que vivían en hoteles

Q: ViewPagerIndicator - custom viewpager indicator I have a custom viewpager indicator as I use a custom indicator that implements the viewpager indicator's interface. ViewPagerIndicator ViewPagerIndicator = (ViewPagerIndicator) v.findViewById(R.id.viewPagerIndicator); ViewPagerIndicator.setIndicator(getIndicator(getContext())); ViewPagerIndicator.setUnderlineColor(getContext().getResources().getColor(R.color.green)); My problem is that I also need to display a progressbar when an item is being scrolled. The progressbar is used to inform the user that the page is being loaded. I know that there is a way to change the viewpager indicator's background color if I implement my own views for each page. Would this be the right approach for this? Thanks A: You should do this, update the views when the page is loading. No need for any indicator, when we need this, the main problem is updating the views. We need some indicator too but don't worry, I have a solution for that. It is easy, use the internal PageAdapter. We use the PageView.setAdapter method, this method directly overrides the adapter and all the views are updated in the main thread. PageView pageView = view.findViewById(R.id.my_page_view); ArrayList items = new ArrayList(); items.add("first"); items.add("second"); items.add("third"); LinearLayoutManager llm = new LinearLayoutManager(getContext()); llm.setOrientation(LinearLayoutManager.VERTICAL); viewPager.setAdapter(new MyPagerAdapter(getContext(), items)); pageView.setAdapter(view
