Photoshop Elements is a free version of Photoshop. With only limited editing capabilities, Photoshop Elements is a good option for beginners. Zoom Adobe Photoshop has the capability to zoom into an image to view the detail of an object in the image. It can be used to magnify or reduce an image by moving the zoom window around the image or by zooming in or out by using the zoom tool that can be found in the Tools panel. Photoshop also has the ability to rotate the image left, right, up, or down. The Zoom tool in Photoshop has a single setting that can be toggled with the eyedropper tool (explained next) or by choosing Camera → Zoom (Live View) from the Tools panel or Window → Zoom. Figure 2-1 shows a close-up of a butterfly with the Zoom tool active. You can see that the butterfly appears to be a few inches from the real position of the butterfly in the photo. The difference in size is the magnification of the Zoom tool. You can achieve the same effect in Photoshop Elements by selecting Image → Zoom → Zoom in (in the menu at the bottom left of the Image window) or by choosing View → Zoom In. To increase the size of the image, also known as zoom out (see Book III, Chapter 5), just press the Ctrl (Windows) or ⌘ (Mac OS) key and the + key on your keyboard simultaneously. Figure 2-1:

The Zoom tool, which is found in Photoshop, enables you to zoom in or out on an image.

Cropping an image Cropping is the process of selecting a specific portion of an image and removing all or part of the image outside the chosen area.

Cropping is a useful tool for organizing your image collection and making it easier to see or work with the specific image that you want to keep. When you crop an image, its borders become transparent, and the `_crop mark_` (the area that you've cropped) remains transparent. If you need more of an image, just drag the crop mark around. If you need less, just remove the crop mark by dragging it outside the image. Photoshop's crop tool enables you to select a rectangular or elliptical border of an image and remove all the pixels inside it. It's a fairly simple tool, as shown in Figure 2-2. Figure 2-2:

Fed. Sec. L. Rep. P 99,025
Larry G. STRZALKA, Plaintiff-Appellee, v. SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION,
Defendant-Appellant. No.
94-2088. United States Court of Appeals, Eighth Circuit.
Submitted Feb. 14,
1996. Decided Feb. 20, 1996.
Appeal from the United States District Court for the District of Minnesota; Paul A. Magnuson,

U.S.D.C. Judge. Mark Daniel Swartz, Washington, DC, argued, for defendant-appellant.
David P. Smith, St. Paul, MN, argued, for plaintiff-appellee.
Before WOLLMAN, MAGILL, and HANSEN, Circuit Judges.
PER CURIAM. 1 The Securities and Exchange Commission
(SEC) appeals from the district court's¹ grant of Larry G.
Strzalka's petition for attorneys' fees under the Equal Access to Justice Act (EAJA). See 28 U.S.C. § 2412(d)(1)(A). For reversal, the SEC argues that (1) the district court lacked statutory authority to order the fees granted and (2) the district court abused its discretion in awarding the fees. 2 On September 26, 1992, Strzalka filed a complaint against the SEC in the district court, alleging that the SEC failed to comply with its statutory obligations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the Administrative Procedure Act, breached its common law fiduciary duty to Strzalka, and violated its own regulations. After dismissing the case for lack of jurisdiction and granting the SEC's motion to vacate, the district court denied Strzalka's motion for attorneys' fees, concluding that Strzalka's application was not a "prevailing party" within the meaning of EAJA. On January 6, 1995, the court awarded attorneys' fees. The SEC then moved for reconsideration, raising the issue for the first time that Strzalka's application was not timely under EAJA. The district court denied the motion for reconsideration, finding that the SEC had waived its right to seek reconsideration. The SEC then moved for the district court to certify its January 6 order for inter

After 3.5 hours of frantic negotiations, he agreed to give the remaining 50 per cent control to his sister, Aroon Purie. In today's edition of Times of India, a report says that Mr Arora is so eager to clear his name that he agreed to give control of the family business to his sister. Aroon Purie is said to be in talks with her brother over the company's split. The report also says that Aroon is a “very business-minded woman who is very hands-on” and doesn’t like anyone telling her what to do in the business. As reported earlier by NewsX, Aroon Purie was upset after Jaypee Infratech had to postpone the meeting on Tuesday citing the commitments of the organisations in the markets and time for maintaining liquidity. A senior RIL official had earlier told the Bombay Stock Exchange that the postponement of the meeting could have been prompted by “reasons beyond his control”. The announcement came hours after RIL Chairman and Managing Director Mukesh Ambani and Purie met RIL’s board, the top five officials of the company.
