Did you know that elastokinesis is all about getting and keeping an aim using gravity? Have a look at this explanation (with accompanying image) for an explanation of how it works. It looks like it's very much about the same sort of principles that your brain uses to "guide" you during walking. (Perhaps your wife has a field day when she takes long walks on a treadmill in the evening ;) (btw, I also know a woman that walks like that - wearing a lot of make up to be sure!). I have some ideas of my own for how to get a whole lot of exercise using the ladies at work as part of my work-out. But that's a story for another day.) A: You should not try to interpret the reason behind these words in an attempt to follow the normal meaning.

These words might have a meaning of their own which is not evident from their literal interpretation.

E.g. What is the meaning of these words? _____ X
