After installing the tool and entering the master password, you are ready to protect your data. The program features two modes of operation: On and Off. In the first mode, you are required to enter your master password as soon as the system boots up. Once the system boots up and before the login screen appears, you should provide the exact password. That's how you make sure no one can access it and that you can access your computer without any problems. Once entered, you will be able to login to Windows or macOS with the same password. However, for security purposes, you should use a different password for your applications and documents. By default, this password is the same for both Windows and macOS, but you can easily change it. By default, the tool will automatically lock the system and immediately log you out if the master password is wrong. However, you can prevent this from happening by setting another password that can unlock the application. It will ask you to enter the new master password before finally logging you in. After logging in, you can easily access the system settings to configure the tool and add your applications. The list of applications is designed to be very large. The tool supports many popular applications, such as Internet Explorer, Microsoft Outlook, Adobe Photoshop, Google Chrome and others. Once the application is added, it will show up in the 'blocked' list. You can simply drag the items to the 'blocked' list to manage them. The program works without any restrictions. However, it will become unusable if the computer is turned off. In this situation, you can automatically shutdown the computer after a few seconds or add a second-string master password. This password is completely different from the first one, so when you enter it, the system will automatically shut off. The application is designed to protect your security. However, in order to achieve this, it should work in 'hidden mode' and it should not stay on your desktop. The only way to use the tool is to use the System Settings, run it, and select On to hide the application. The program will stay invisible and you can access it from anywhere in your computer. No automatic setup or update The main purpose of the tool is to protect your private data. Thus, you can't really expect it to do anything without you doing so. Fortunately, Guard is designed to work perfectly without any setup or update process. This feature allows
