U.S. president-elect Donald Trump holds a news conference at the New York Hilton Midtown in Manhattan, New York, U.S. December 9, 2016. REUTERS/Mike Segar NEW YORK (Reuters) - U.S. President-elect Donald Trump plans to spend the next two weeks settling into Trump Tower, preparing for the Jan. 20 inauguration, to which he has said he will attend, two senior Trump aides said on Tuesday. Trump will meet with advisers and transition officials who are setting up his team, and work to fill out his Cabinet. He plans to meet with Chief of Staff Reince Priebus, National Security Adviser Michael Flynn, Attorney General Jeff Sessions, and others, Trump aides said in a conference call. The aides added that Trump is expected to talk with top advisers Ivanka Trump and her husband Jared Kushner. On Tuesday, Trump held a news conference at New York's Trump Tower. He also spoke at a rally in Florida, and is expected to be joined by Vice President-elect Mike Pence in New York. The next two weeks are a "critical time" for the president-elect, as is the coming transition, Kellyanne Conway, his campaign manager, told CNN. "He wants to be there in person for that, but there's a business side to all of this, and he wants to stay focused on that," she said. Trump has already canceled a trip to Washington on Friday for the final leg of the presidential transition, the aides said. Trump was expected to meet with House and Senate Republican leaders on Friday to discuss the U.S. Congress and Cabinet positions.
