Not appended with suffixes: Cfa, Cfd, Cfs, or Chd. Definitions: Chb - Cool or cold Cfa - A cool breeze, chilly winds Cfs - Mostly clear Cff - Mostly cloudy, sun breaks through Chd - A moderate breeze with a light mist or drizzle. Grades: A - Warm and sunny B - Showers likely C - Rain is falling D - Thunderstorms, floods, or snow in the forecast E - Freezing rain, sleet or snow, or thunderstorms Format of Journal/Notebook: Appends letter suffixes to each entry (Ia, Ib, Ic...). Categories: Anets or single entries, not arranged alphabetically Entry Format: Each new entry appends letter suffixes to each entry (Ia, Ib, Ic...). Dates Used: YMD/YDD formats. Change the format by editing the system settings file The first screen you encounter when starting the program is the setting options you can customize at any time. Clicking on the "Change the format" button will show a list of available formats. It includes a variety of date and time formatting options, such as the ones you can select for the dates used in the databases. Select among 12 formats and then make the changes by clicking on the "Apply changes" button. For instance, you can use the program's default date format but you might want to stick to a specific format like yyyy-mm-dd HH:MM. Choose the journal style Each individual entry can have a different journal style, which means that you can create different books, arranged in different ways. You can save a certain journal style by adding a dedicated folder in the "My Documents" folder. The journal can be accessed by clicking the "Journal folder" button and it can be used by different users. You can also change the font used to display the record's heading, which makes it easier to set up a different look. Check for updates As the program is free, you can expect it to work seamlessly, without any issues. However, you should check regularly to make sure that the server running the program does not get overloaded. Also, you might want to consider installing the available program update to make sure the application is fully equipped for your needs. You should be able to find the "Check for updates"
