Q: List of all startup scripts in Windows Is there a way to list all startup scripts in Windows? I would like to run all startup scripts in the registry so I can run them manually in the next boot. The reason for that is that my startup scripts could change anytime. And if they change I have to run all scripts again. Thanks!

A: You can easily run script from the registry, using simple powershell: powershell -File "example.ps1" Or invoke any installed program. Another way is using the command line: "C:\Program Files (x86)\WinRAR\WinRAR.exe" /q /s /x ".\example.com" To invoke all programs on the system, you can use this command: C:\Windows\System32\taskkill /F /IM winrar.exe /F /T

A: If you already have this script written and in a file, you can simply execute it by using the .NET Process class: Process process = new Process(); process.StartInfo.FileName = "path to file containing script"; process.Start(); Alternatively, if you are using .NET 4.0 or later, you can use the Directory.GetFiles method: string[] files =
