Please check out the license at Source code History This software was started in 2008 by A.K. Peropadre as an alternative to the currently existing recorders. It was first distributed under the GPLv2 license, and later under the Apache2 license. In 2015 a new version was released, which has adopted a different license. Why do I need it? RecordStreamRecorder.NET was originally created to be an alternative to the currently available recorders for internet radio. This was especially true for low-cost or free streams that are easily missed in the normal stream recorders. RecordStreamRecorder.NET was designed with the following features: Automatically identify the program name, with the help of Internet radio databases and log files Automatically find and record an appropriate country Automatically trim and resample the audio as needed Automatically encode the audio to the best quality setting for the particular online radio stream. Automatically add the stream URL to the file name, creating a URL such as Provide a simple, easy-to-use interface Category:Audio software Category:Free media players Category:Streaming software Category:Linux media players Category:Unix media players Category:Windows media players the night air had grown chilly, with the fall of night, and the beams of the stars
