What's new in Day Of Dragons:

Thoughts Last week, Instagram featured a photo of a gorgeous looking leaflet with a message from "Beauty & the Best" that read, "We work with all seasons, all over the country, and all around the world, so wherever we are, our services are available. We are a 100% paperless packing system." So, here's me in need of packing inspiration. I packed a box full of what I've found useful for blog packing, but the edge of my packing system like a boobie. I did everything on the outside to tell the story of the contents. In this post, I want to tell you my Leaflet Love Story. First off, my friend Erin of The Lined Living came to me and asked about all of this blog packing that I've been doing. I started telling her what I was going through when she agreed that it could be a good idea for her to create an online store and offer this type of service to local bloggers via her blog. She explained that the idea was to give deserving bloggers free services based on their blog. The services include mostly packing services, but I know other types that will complement the variety of packing services with affordable prices and quick turnaround times. So, I explained that I was hoping that other local bloggers would jump on board and I had been contacted by Amy of Nifty Savvy Things. You all know Amy because she was the first blogger to offer to create a free classroom to bloggers as a part of the Magical School Makers. She also offered it as a free online service and when she did, I bought her map templates for class rooms, bulletin boards and interesting goodies for teachers. You can find her post here. I explained to Amy that there was nowhere in the area where I could offer packing services, but I was thinking about starting my own blog about packing and taking requests to start. I'd also be setting up a full blogging transformation, but I know other bloggers out there that could use a hand with packing a few pieces of really large inventory and perhaps a single box or two (one for the blog and one for packing instructions - growing pains). Amy told me she was interested and would jump on board with a love heart in her post. Before I knew it, out of the blue, I got a message from Imogene. She too was interested and asked all kind of questions (a lot of them). Imogene and Amy are both very well-
