According to S.B.SINGAPORE - The High Court has dismissed the appeal by three Southern Water pensioners who challenged a decision by the Government to sell off a portion of a waterway. Justice See Kee Oon said the group of retirees from the water company applied to the courts in order to stop their pension being transferred to a third-party investor, but did not pay the deposit and costs required. "To the extent that it was not in accordance with law, it was therefore moot and the respondents were entitled to withdraw the appeal," the judge wrote. The Southern Water Pensioners Association (SWPA), an organisation comprising of past and present employees of Southern Water, had appealed against the May 14 decision by the state pension agency to transfer 6.73 hectares of its waterway assets to New People's Initiative Investment Trust. The three retirees, Mr K Low Foon, 88, Mr L Chew Suen, 87, and Ms Yun Tze Lin, 83, challenged the decision on the grounds that the waterway is a

Two more Texas women accused of being "Juanita Broadrick" have sued former President Bill Clinton in an attempt to get money out of the Clintons' pocket. A federal judge has ruled in their favor in the $10 million case, but it's not clear if the women will be paid. In one lawsuit, a mother of three who lives in Houston said she would have had a child with the former president had she known about his affair with Broadrick. In the other lawsuit, a retired parole officer living in Port Arthur said she wouldn't have voted for Clinton and says he should pay her for years of mistreatment. Clinton has denied the allegations. His wife, Hillary Clinton, has said the women are making it up. The lawsuit brought against the former president is an attempt to recoup millions in legal fees as well as damages. He spent $70 million in legal fees in his own defense — some of the highest fees ever spent on a presidential criminal trial, according to the National Center for State Courts, a legal organization that has archived all U.S. Supreme Court decisions for more than a decade. The last of those cases was decided in 2000 and involved the 2000 presidential election. The women, Juanita Broadrick and Paula Jones, both claim Clinton raped them in the early 1980s. Both alleged that they were at a hotel conference room in Arkansas around 1975 or 1976, that the former president had a room service tray brought in and that he was wearing a "white uniform" and then was allegedly forced to perform oral sex. Jones, a former Arkansas state employee, was a plaintiff in the Jones case. She spent nearly $800,000 in legal fees. Both women went public with their allegations in news media interviews in January 1998. Broadrick's was from an article published in The Denver Post and Jones' was from an article published in Glamour Magazine. Both women said they did not report the alleged rape because they were afraid they would lose their jobs. Jones and Broadrick filed their lawsuits against Clinton after he was elected president in 1992. Jones filed hers during the Clinton administration. In each case, U.S. District Judge Susan Webber Wright ruled in favor of the defendant, and Clinton was not ordered to pay any money.
