I adore my iPhone. But I'm starting to become convinced of the validity of my impulses. To wit: SMS. Two devices, the iPhone and the Mac work, they just do it in two different ways.

People question whether I'm missing out on the security and reliability of the PC world? But the fact is, even if the Mac was delayed while the iPhone was unveiled in June 2007, there'd still been more than a year to write software.

Truthfully, I don't need the reliability of a PC since I get my mail and process photos through email
