So there's a survey you can fill out at and when you do, in the "How did you hear about us?" section, you can pick Tell Us About Yourself. I think that's a better fit than "Who are you?" (which is the default, so you'll be able to get to it) and I think that helps to answer some questions, but I might be wrong about that so, even if it doesn't answer any of your questions, that's okay because I don't want to put work into something I think is an incorrect assumption. Negative effects of mesothelial sensitivity to tumour necrosis factor-alpha in idiopathic pleurisy are associated with good prognosis. The authors have shown that mesothelial cells exposed to tumour necrosis factor-alpha have no defect in their sensitivity to this cytokine, and that free mesothelial cells from the pleural cavity of patients with pleural tuberculosis have a defective sensitivity to tumour necrosis factor-alpha. It is well known that tuberculous pleuritis has a good prognosis. The aim of this study is to elucidate if tumour necrosis factor-alpha, released by tuberculous cells, have a role in the pathogenesis of the disease. The authors investigated mesothelial sensitivity to tumour necrosis factor-alpha in patients with pleurisy of unknown cause. Correlations were sought among mesothelial response to tumour necrosis factor-alpha and the clinical features and prognosis of idiopathic pleurisy. The authors found that, in patients with pleurisy of unknown cause, the mean stimulation index of mesothelial response to tumour necrosis factor-alpha was 1.19 +/- 0.66 (SEM), while that in patients with tuberculosis was 3.58 +/- 1.20 (P = 0.002; Mann-Whitney test). The mesothelial cells from patients with a good prognosis had a mean response index of 3.06 +/- 1.20 (SEM), while that from patients with a poor prognosis was 1.94 +/- 0.75 (P = 0.05). Mesothelial sensitivity to tumour necrosis factor-alpha seems to be related to the prognosis in patients with idiopathic pleurisy. Mesothelial cells from patients with a good prognosis, in contrast to those from patients with a poor one, were not affected by tumour necrosis factor-alpha, a factor released by pleural tuberculous macrophages.Q: How to prove that these two equations are permutations?
