A vast world where open fields with a variety of situations and huge dungeons with complex and three-dimensional designs are seamlessly connected. asgard_walkthrough_p1 Overview of Each Dungeon Each dungeon is linked to open fields and has a variety of situations. Here are explanations on the differences between a dungeon that has an open field, a dungeon that has multiple floors, a dungeon that has a ceiling, a dungeon that has a wall, and a dungeon that has special conditions. Depending on where you are, you may be able to escape a dungeon. If you are running out of stamina, your stamina will drop. When your stamina is below 50%, you will be unable to move until you have a chance to recover your stamina. At this point, there are a few things you can do. You can use your skill to recover stamina, or you can wait for it to regain its strength. You can use your skill to recover your stamina by pressing left on the D-pad. Let's say you are facing a dungeon with a wall. You can try to use your skill to recover your stamina, but your skill will not be able to reach a distance of 50% of the wall's height. You will have to move away and try to use your skill again. Do you want to move away and try again? Or do you want to rush forward and see what happens? Regardless of your choice, you will lose your stamina that way. If you go into a dungeon that has multiple floors, your party may be unable to climb up to a higher floor. In this case, the number in the upper right corner of the dungeon screen will display the number of floors there are. If there is a wall, your party may not be able to climb up the wall. If this happens, you can select the left arrow or right arrow. Or you can move out of the way and avoid being knocked down. Of course, you will lose stamina at that time. For a dungeon that has a ceiling, you cannot go to the middle of the dungeon. However, if you go to the middle of the dungeon, you will be able to see the entire dungeon. You can use your skill to get to the middle of the dungeon. However, if the dungeon has multiple floors, the number of floors that you can see will decrease. Also, when you use your skill to go to the middle of the dungeon, you will lose stamina.
