The new camera angles, ball physics, new controls and ball animation offer top-notch quality on PlayStation 4. The three new camera angles, introduced in FIFA 17, are back. There are several new features to change the way football is played and evaluated in FIFA. "Rotation," for instance, will give fans control over goals, as they may move them up, down or side-to-side. Making a goal a "striker," where the shot is played only when the player is inside the box, will greatly change the role of the penalty taker. You will see the most visible addition in the new player models and animations. All the models, from the front to the back, had to be created from scratch for FIFA 22 and reflect the qualities of today's athletes. Thousands of reactions and animations for every single player and team were added to create the fluidity and realism in the game. The animations are some of the most significant changes in the game. "Elbow Ball" and "Long Head Throws" are examples of new animations that add even more life to the players and the game. The FIFA 22 footwork, dribbling, ball-playing techniques, off-ball runs, decision making and set-piece goals were also improved. The new "3D Match Engine", which determines the ball flow and the duels between players, improved the game's decisions on tackling, off-the-ball movement and new behaviours. It also features new animations for ball-playing techniques, like "feints", as well as more high-paced football, with extra-long passes, with players running off of their natural speed and doing multiple dribbles to increase ball circulation. "Pitch Awareness" are the new features that make the real environment more coherent and clear in every single aspect. The new Ball Physics, the new camera angle and the new ball animation bring FIFA closer to reality. "Overcoming Midfield Defenses" is the key feature of FIFA 22, giving more awareness to the defenders and a better gap control between the midfielders and central defenders. It's the most interesting and demanding new gameplay feature, as it doesn't only affect FIFA 22's tactical approach to the game, but it is also presented differently than ever before in FIFA history. "The Breakthrough"

Football is a game played between two teams of 11 players on a rectangular pitch with a ball. Players take turns in an attempt to gain possession of the ball by either running with it or passing it and then kicking or dribbling it. One of the players on the field is the goalkeeper who is responsible for preventing goals from being scored. Once the ball goes out of bounds, it is generally put back into play by one of the teammates of the team in possession. FIFA stands for "Federated International Football Association" and has been around since 1958. The original FIFA game was released in the 1980's, much to the chagrin of many football fans who preferred their football on the field to be played better. A majority of players are fans of the English Premiership so the FIFA games were focused on that league. Now, with the rise of the Latin American leagues, FIFA games are showing more of a spread out game. There are currently 2 different versions of FIFA out on the market:

There are currently over 300 different jerseys out for purchase in the FIFA series and currently there are over 500 teams to choose from in 1 of 4 different leagues. The current trend in the FIFA series is to use a team name in both the American and European versions of the game. The name must be the same in both leagues or the game will not register.
