The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay. The challenge We had the fortune of being able to pick the brain of a couple of the key developers at EA Sports and get insight into the processes behind the creation of FIFA 22. Firstly, FIFA Lead Producer Jacob Kaminski, who has been on board since the inception of FIFA 06, answered a variety of questions aimed to answer how the team goes about ensuring the game continues to provide the most fun and the most authentic gameplay experience. We then had the privilege of speaking with FIFA's Creative Director David Rutter who was pivotal in ensuring that FIFA survived the transition to new hardware in the last generation, and he explained how HyperMotion Technology works in conjunction with the new engine, and how it affects the game's gameplay and controls. A look at how FIFA 22's new engine affects gameplay and FIFA Ultimate Team. The look and feel Before we got into the technical nitty-gritty of the new features, Jacob and David wanted to explain some of the things they were most excited about. David commented that there were "two incredible things" about FIFA 22 - its beautiful new engine powered by Frostbite and the new motion capture system that is used to capture every single movement of every player. "It's pretty exciting because it's the most accurate representation of what a football player actually does in the game," David revealed, "not only are we now doing most of the passes and close control stuff, we're doing tackles and nearly all of the player animations." Jacob added that he loved the way the team was able to "fully build and flesh out" the new features through the development cycle of FIFA 18. "We've always had a lot of control over what goes into the game.

World football has truly never been closer - FIFA gives players full control over where, when and how they play, and what their opponent has at their disposal. This season, the possibilities are endless. Authentic team and player movements Simulate how the ball moves through the air using motion-based physics. Feint to make a defender lose his balance - the skills you need to create space on the pitch will be different to the ones you'll use to shoot in a penalty box. Play FIFA how you want, when you want - pick your play style and experience the dynamic feel of the new career mode. Responsive crowd interaction Mimic the noise and emotion of a packed stadium – use crowd-based context to influence how you play and what you do on the pitch. Whether you're about to concede a goal or celebrate a goal, the crowd and stadium reacts dynamically to every touch. Incredible commentary from over 50 broadcasters, including David Beckham and Robbie Fowler. Get ready for a season of sustained excitement when EA SPORTS FIFA 22 launches on September 27th, on PlayStation 4™, Xbox One™ and Windows PC. Today, we're excited to announce the first-ever Premier League partnership for FIFA, joining forces with our favorite league in the world and introducing a whole new level of FIFA authenticity. Premier League fans will be able to enjoy the most authentic experiences in football gaming – from the slick visuals, highly detailed stadiums and dynamic crowds, to the right to voice their opinions and influence team line-ups and player choices. During this first season of the agreement, FIFA will pay homage to the greats of the Premier League from David Beckham to Frank Lampard, watching as they strut their stuff on the field in the game via an updated commentary feature. “We're thrilled to work with EA and deliver Premier League features and challenges in FIFA for the first time, bringing football gaming to a new level.” “FIFA is the best football video game franchise of all time and EA is the best sports game publisher, so with the ambition of providing a ground-breaking football experience, this partnership should come as no surprise.” “Our partnership is one of the most innovative in gaming, and represents a game changing opportunity for players to experience how we have recreated the English
