The problem is: I need a Task from a Task.Run() to then call a function (WaitFor()). I have tried to avoid the Task.Wait() by setting the Task.Result in the code and returning the new Task in the code, and setting the Task.Result in the beginning of the function, but I've been having problems with it not working when I want it to (I want to only await on one Task from the Task.Run()), the one that is setting Task.Result). I have made a method that will make my code run when I need it, but I have no idea how to get it to wait for itself before executing. var _test = new Test(); var test = Task.Run(async () => await _test.foo()); await test; I have also tried to use Task.WaitAny() but I can't make that work either. For context, here's some of my code (it's not essential to the question, though :)): public async Task foo() { await Task.Delay(1.0); return true; } public Task main() { Task t = Task.Run(async () => await _test.foo()); t.Wait(); _test.DoSomething(); return new Task(...); } It works when I call the task directly as I expect, so I don't think it's my code that's wrong, but it may be something with the way I am using the tasks, so I need help

CONCACAF CONCACAF is the governing body for soccer in the Americas and has been part of the FIFA family since 2006. Its first official tournament was the CONCACAF Gold Cup in 1991. The Confederation uses FIFA official competitions and official competitions of the national leagues to determine the qualification and final ranking for the hosting of international tournaments and special friendly tournaments, including the FIFA World Cup. CONCACAF now provides world-class men's and women's national teams, which participate in FIFA World Cups, the Copa America, the Gold Cup and the CONCACAF Nations League. The Confederation also provides support to the member associations in the area of football development, coaching education and grassroots programs, as well as to national teams in competition against international opponents. In addition to the Confederation's main administration department, CONCACAF now has Football Committee, Confed Women's, Confed U-20 and Confed U-17 football departments. Under the new FIFA "Project Play" initiative, FIFA is supporting football at all levels within CONCACAF. FIFA's technical partnership with the Confederation will be used to help bring football to communities, improve coaching and technical skills, and develop youth and elite players. FIFA is also working with CONCACAF, which has been appointed "FIFA's Official Supporters Association" for South America and Mexico.Disneyland to offer Apple Watch Syracuse-based Disney has launched a new option for Disney Travel and Resort at Disneyland and Disney California Adventure called Disney ByWatch. FIFA (known as Pro Evolution Soccer in Europe) is the world’s most popular and best-selling sports simulation game, which has sold over 48.4 million copies. It doesn’t matter which FIFA version you own, FIFA introduces players to a range of creative features including: Real Player Motion Technology, improved 3D skill moves, Elite Player Targeting System, Master League, Team of the Year, FIFA Ultimate Team™, beautiful and living pitch surfaces, tournament mode and the season pass. Gameplay FIFA celebrates the human side of the sport, with improved dribbling, new Ultimate Team™ game modes, better handling and offensive play. In addition to controlling the world’s best players with new targeting and tactics, players are also given the freedom to express themselves by creating the ultimate footballing alter ego. FIFA 22 introduces a number of fundamental gameplay advances, including: The smarter player – Every FIFA game has an intuitive new single-player FIFA Intelligence system, allowing users to analyse and improve their player’s intelligence and performance. FIFA Master League - New players can join by purchasing one of several Master League season tickets. There are a range of different themes for each of the four seasons, featuring four, eight or 12 games per year and only one team can gain promotion per season. Three ways to play – Create and play from the virtual touchline, use gameplay or Ultimate Team™ modes. Improved catch-up – Users can now play a career mode or a tournament mode with a colleague offline and see their points and results at any time. FIFA Ultimate Team™ is a new way to play Ultimate Team™ with up to 3,000 card matches per year, and will attract new gamers to Ultimate Team™ in larger numbers than any other game. As players progress, they are now able to move their Ultimate Team™ cards through the season and into their full-team Ultimate Team™ player list, with the ability to create their own cards from their players’ cards. Team of the Year – Users can now create their own team of the year for the year ahead, and play tournaments and gain promotion at the end of each season. Simplicity in style – New animations, player models, kit shapes and styles of gameplay will give users the simplicity of style that they have been asking for. New Touch Transition – Players have to direct their move when touching the ball, or
