|filemaker pro license key| filemaker pro license key regexp_replace({field_content}, [\r\s]~, '[,~') return {field_name} If you wish to read more about how to make reliable searches and regexp_replace, refer to the following: Replacing Text in FileMaker Pro Web App I have a problem with regexp_replace: filemaker pro license key regexp_replace({field_content}, [\r\s]~, '[,~') return {field_name} I have more than 50 records in the database and I use a for loop to get each record for x = 1 to 50 filedata = regexp_replace({field_content}, [\r\s]~, '[,~') yield {field_name} However, the result is the same as I read from the first record, not change after all the records. Could someone help me? Thank you. A: The documentation on textpattern.com (states that the ~ at the end of a regexp_replace statement causes the search to complete when found, so in your case it does not modify the text. (Also, you should be using double braces to make your regexp replace delimiters.) If your records do not have any newlines or carriage returns in them, just remove the ~ in the above statement. However, if your records do have newlines or carriage returns in them, you need to replace the ~ with a ". As a rule of thumb, if you are not sure if a statement will end the search, add the latter. A regexp search for the position you're looking at is probably far more efficient: ((?June 1953 lunar eclipse A penumbral lunar eclipse took place on June 5, 1953.
