"Discography" is the second and final studio album from American R&B singer Freddie Jackson, released on December 1, 1997 through Starstruck Records. His first solo album, A Night to Remember, was released in 1995. Following its release, he signed a record deal with Capitol Records and began working on Discography. The album, which debuted at number 83 on Billboard's "Heatseeker Albums" chart, was Jackson's first solo album since the death of his friend and fellow singer, Michael Jackson, two months prior to the album's release. Its first single, "It's Gonna Be", was released on July 17, 1997. The song "It's Gonna Be" was later featured in the 1999 film, The Specialist. This album produced four singles, with "A Night to Remember" reaching number one on the US Billboard Hot 100. It was a successful comeback album for Jackson, who had achieved his first number-one single with the song "Remember Me" which was released from his first album. Jackson also released three duets with Aaliyah, and two covers with his brother, Jermaine Jackson, of the songs "You Are Not Alone" and "The Best Things in Life Are Free". Jackson provided the voice of the character Michael Jackson in the 1999 direct-to-video movie The Journey of Allen Strange. The film was a sequel to 1996's The Man in the Mask. The midtempo single "Here I Am" was the last song Jackson performed live with his family, after having done so on several occasions prior to his death. It was also featured in the closing credits of the 2000 film adaptation of Aaliyah's My Life. The song, which entered the top 10 in Britain, was also included on the album, "More Than Ever" (2002) by the pop group, 98 Degrees. On June 14, 2007, the album was re-released on iTunes.
