Morning Thoughts HI. You awake yet? I know I am. Yawn yawn yawn. It's Tuesday, February 27. I have to get this post up for today's Bloggers' Block before the day is done. I write these meditation posts throughout the week, in the mornings, to try to spread the beauty of meditation/meditative mind over as much of these videos as possible. I try to be brief. This time I chose this song to play as background as this morning's thought and meditation this morning centers on the body's movement throughout the day and the influence meditation can have on it. How you can practice meditation can be demonstrated through your daily movement. It is what it says on the box. You can learn a muscle or better yourself. If you are a runner or someone who has tried and failed to break into it like I have, here are some suggestions. Start a slow and steady pace and when possible, keep moving from time to time. It is still a good idea to get proper and regular running and moving to assure your body takes a break from sitting, staying still, doing nothing. Also, regularly stretch, including with the new Twistology Yoga Stretching Mastery DVD/Product by Flexible Fitness (see Sunday's post for the details) and do your body weight moving and stretching program in the morning before you do anything else. However, you don't have to work out yourself. The best form of exercise for my body is a good yoga session. Yoga offers a good mix of stretching and strengthening. Many traditional formats of yoga incorporate both muscle toning and stretching of the entire body in the same session. The Bend In Space video that I am sharing today was recently featured in Yoga Journal. I'm always happy when Yoga Journal chooses to feature videos on their one of web magazine. This video's description from the teacher, Annie Fitzgerald, who is also our editor, says it best: "Meditating on the breath and in movement, Sam & Annie discover the benefits of a mindful yoga practice, which includes body awareness as part of daily living." I have practiced all sorts of yoga, and currently I am a yoga fouder (Get it — guardian, a supporter of a noble cause — oh wait, even if you don't know how to use your powers, drop me a line and I can direct you to a great yoga
