Netflix Stock Hits New High After Netflix Surge Netflix is finishing the first quarter at $276 a share, up from $214 after reporting earnings of 3 cents a share. Quarterly revenue rose more than 50% from a year ago to $3.28 billion. The company is now trading at about the same price a year ago, at more than $250. The company released disappointing earnings guidance for the second quarter — a loss of 12 cents to 30 cents a share — on revenue of $3.1 billion to $3.3 billion. Without a huge boost from the online streaming business, Netflix's profits look weak. They were flat in the first quarter. The company says it now has about 19.3 million subscribers in the U.S., compared to 18.75 million a year ago. Net income for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31 was $355 million, or 64 cents a share, compared to $325 million, or 49 cents a share, in last year's fiscal year. Revenue for the year was $6.05 billion, up from $4.67 billion. Netflix shares are up 12% this year. Investors have been enthusiastic about the company after it reported its first quarterly profit of at least 50 cents a share in April. Netflix is one of the few winners in the current bull market. For an autonomous vehicle to be of value, it must be able to perform some form of self-driving functions. One such function is the ability of the autonomous vehicle to change direction of travel. At the present time, there is a substantial amount of effort being expended in the area of direction sensing and control of autonomous vehicles. In general, existing directions sensing and control techniques are of two basic typesxe2x80x94active and passive. The active techniques involve some type of active sensing and include such methods as stereopsis, odometry, light detection and ranging (lidar) and

Associated Press WOONSOCKET - A year after losing its first bid for a new church and rectory, the Woonsocket Diocesan Council, which oversees St. Mary's Church, has made a motion to the diocese to install an 8,000-square-foot church and rectory in its current location. The diocesan council recommended in a motion made Tuesday at the annual convention in Providence that the capital plans for the future be put before the diocese for approval and that the diocese recommend to Pope Francis that he approve the capital project. The diocesan council has been working for several years to secure funding for the new church and rectory, which currently have a capacity of about 3,000, and to have it built in its current location. The Woonsocket Catholic Diocesan Council and the Rev. Roger Gibbs, chairman, presented the motion. The cost of the project is projected to be about $11.8 million. When the diocese moved out of its previous location on Camp Street in 2010, the diocese sold the property to Lawrence Industries for $2.4 million. Last year, the diocese agreed to allow the diocese council to explore other building options for the church. The council agreed that the new church site would be at 190 Mill Road, a parcel owned by the Providence Housing Authority. Last week, the diocese sent a letter to the Providence Housing Authority asking if the authority would sell the property to the diocese for $1,230,000, as previously proposed. The Providence Housing Authority on Sunday announced that it has accepted a plan to acquire the land through the federal government's Community Development Block Grant program. Last year, the diocese was unable to reach an agreement with the Providence Housing Authority to purchase the property and allowed the diocesan council to explore other options. Unwanted transient events in electronic circuits can interfere with the operation of the circuits and thus require the circuit to go into some type of power-off state, for example by tripping a circuit breaker or by bringing down the power voltage across the circuit. Unwanted transient events can include, for example, over-voltage conditions, over-current conditions, short-circuit conditions, or combinations of over-voltage and over-current conditions. Transient event detection may be required in other types of circuits as well, for example in telecommunications circuits, in driver circuits of
