HILL - Studio Ghibli .The Immunology Group (IG) is a multidisciplinary group encompassing multiple interests within the specialties of Pediatrics, Dermatology, Surgery, Medicine and Allergy/Immunology. As part of the NIAID Immunology Branch, our specific primary research interests focus on the development of novel vaccines, cellular and molecular therapies, targeted therapeutics and immunologic and inflammatory mediators, as well as translation to the clinical setting. The International Immunology program of the NIAID IG is focused on (a) novel vaccine development, (b) immune mediated disease, (c) lymphocyte biology, and (d) methods of measuring immune responses. We are a research group that has a history of collaborative, multidisciplinary, cross-programmatic and international activities, which have been pursued through our annual symposia and through our exchange program with the Immunology Association of America, the Asian Pacific Society of Immunology (APSIA), the Society for Immunotherapy of Cancer (SITC), and the European Society of Immunotherapy of Cancer (ESITC). We are currently developing an annual symposium on current topics in Vaccine Development, co-sponsored with the U.S. Public Health Service, at which we will present the latest research data in the development of vaccines. We participate in a number of collaborative and multidisciplinary clinical trials and other related research studies, particularly to study diseases of affluence such as asthma, diabetes, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), obesity, and cardiovascular disease. Our research activities have been published in high impact journals, and we also publish regularly in recognized scientific journals. We have two ongoing studies that have enrolled
