Delve into a dystopian sci-fi adventure and defend yourself from deadly aliens as you are the last hope for the galaxy! The Verge: "You'll soon find out that a lot of that meaning is wrapped up in Volcan." —Touch Arcade "You'll wonder what happened to those human colonies, and how they came to be wiped from existence. That's where the world building kicks in, and where Volcan raises its head above the PC crowd." —Sparked "From the very start, Volcan is setting out to be a unique gaming experience, and it succeeds. It's a strange and varied journey." —Indie Game Magazine Dedicated Developers Processor Games Studio •Full-time development team. •20+ years of combined experience in making games. •19+ years of experience in Unreal Engine. •Full-time music composer. •Full-time sound designer. •Full-time 2D and 3D artist. •Full-time level designer. •Former Microsoft Game Studio Game Designer. •Former University & University of British Columbia Game Director. •Former University of British Columbia Game Designer. "I've been watching Volcan progress ever since the Kickstarter finished. It's one of the most well-polished and refined games I've seen, and it's immediately very fun and fascinating to play. I can't wait to dig into it more." —James Walton, IndieGames.com "Volcan is a very great title that captures the idea of a fast paced shooter." —Bubblecast "Sollum is the kind of character that you can't help but root for as you watch him struggle against the odds. The end result is an experience that reminds you of how hectic a lot of other games can be, but with a good amount of polish." —Brad Fitch, Escapist Magazine "Sollum is an interesting character and a fun, well-written side-character. You're itching to jump into his way of life and see what happens next. I'm excited to see more of Sollum's story unfold." —FarClosetGames "The Volcan developer made one of the strongest arguments I've read for the importance of supporting a kickstarter" —Kamrat "The tech improvements, polish and level design are very impressive, and the campaign should capture your imagination." —Grimoire "

We present here a new class of liquid-crystalline polymers, exhibiting large amorphous state dispersity and reduced free energy in the incompressible regime. It is generally assumed that lowering of free energy in the incompressible regime increases the material's stability, since molecular motion is reduced and possible physical instabilities may be effectively suppressed. Our findings, however, contradict this assumption, since materials with reduced average density and free energy are not stabilized. Quite to the contrary, we observe a softening of the elastic moduli associated with nonlinear variations of incompressibility, which nevertheless confer low energy to the soft liquid-crystalline state. In the future, unknown threats from the past have once again plagued humanity's return to the planet's surface. Lost and at the end of the world, a small group of people living in an isolated military base in the mountains called "Volcan". Equipped with powerful weapons and remote controlled giant machines, they all are appointed for the next step on the way of domination. Even though they were left to themselves long time ago by their own commanders, they are not about to give in easily and adapt to the unknown threats. But when the alien race Ganthar is spreading across the planet and their deadly gas attacks are making the death of people return to humanity, how will you act? Is your only option to simply run away from the deadly gas? Or will you fight back? Interview with a Flutter Developer - corbet ===== bpolat This is a great article: It covers a lot of good questions. What I like especially about this article is the fact that the author touches important aspects of Flutter development. The impact of Dart on Flutter is limited, Flutter is built on top of native platform (as the title says), but the article has good examples of how Flutter can be used outside of building native apps. ----- shalabhc _#2. Can you explain the advantages of Flutter over Cordova?_ This question is important but if your aim is to choose between Flutter and Cordova, you'd better ask: * What is the trend for the development of Android and iOS apps? ~~~ corbet My personal approach to this is that the Flutter roadmap is a better choice for desktop apps at the moment, for the reasons I outline in the article. You get the same cross-platform story (outside the Web) with one language, and there's a lot of other stuff like tooling (that didn't exist in Cordova/PhoneGap), etc. For mobile, I'd expect that different solutions will continue to exist, in particular because of the heterogeneous nature of mobile devices (from different handset manufacturers, operating systems, different use cases), and there'll probably be a move to using Android and d41b202975

Physical Description Height: 7'4" Gender: Male Race/Species: Bear Island Hair: Deer's tail in tribal helmet. Eye color: Black eyebrows. Hair color: White History Vito Cugulano was a native to the Great Forest. Once a great hunter, he travelled the world and found his way to the island of Vulcan. He was taken in as a fosterling by old Mount Casaviola, who was just celebrating his 148th birthday. From that day on, he's been taking care of Cugulano. When Cugulano grows up, he soon discovered the Great Forest. Being a bear, he was the most faithful friend of Casaviola. Some time ago, Cugulano caught himself a spotted panther. The panther was named Cuddie because he was born in the hidden house by the creek. He became in close friendship to Cugulano. Cuddie was hunting when a pitch-black big bear jumped on him. Cuddie bit it's paw. When the beast felt Cuddie's teeth inside it's leg he looked with anger in his eyes at Cugulano for biting his paw. Then he died with Cheery heart. For a week, Cuddie's body was on the porch for everyone to see. Cuddie was buried in the small clearing with Casaviola. A few months later, his body was still looking inside the porch in his sleep, dreaming about the bear who visited him the night before his unexpected death. Places of Interest Rocky Shoal to the River of Knowledge Mount Casaviola Finger-pointing walls Old painted signs and flecked with moss Deep, dark caves Tower The old Mount Casaviola is composed with few stones from lava and stones peeled of the Mother Forest. The stones are used on walls to keep the bear's home among the forest. The Portova, the river of knowledge, is located south of the mountain. It's not deep, only a few steps of stones go down into the water. Dry Woods These woods are covered in the youngest wooden bark. They are like eternal stones, where all bears live in the forest, and no one wants to leave. Beach This place is a flat place full of
