KCNRK KCNRK, VHF analog channel 2, is a dual NBC/CW-affiliated television station licensed to Denver, Colorado, United States. The station is owned by the E. W. Scripps Company. KCNRK's studios are located on West 39th Avenue (US 6/US 85 Business) in Westwood, and its transmitter is located on Lookout Mountain in the southern suburbs of Denver. History The station signed on the air on August 15, 1981 as the first independent television station in Denver, serving as the CBS affiliate for the area. KCNRK was originally owned by National Black Network but was sold in 1982 to a group of investors who incorporated as Kansas City Broadcasting Corporation, named after the major market city that was their hometown. NBC Denver was branded as KDTV. The station carried the NBC Movie of the Week and other programs not picked up by the other Colorado stations. KDTV was the only station in the area to broadcast programming in color during this period. The NBC affiliation moved to CBS affiliate KRMA-TV in 1984, after the owners of KRMA changed the station's affiliation to Fox. Shortly after, KDTV switched to a primary affiliation with the Independent Network. Although the station had some original programming of its own, it mainly aired programming from the American Independent Network. During its run as an independent station, the station picked up programs from other networks, mainly UPN and The WB. In 1988, Kansas City Broadcasting Corporation sold the station to Tele-Communications Inc. who would change the call letters to KCNE to match the station's new owners. In addition to the NBC and Independent Network affiliations, it also carried programming from the United Paramount Network (UPN) and The WB. In 1990, UPN and WB decided to enter a cable network and went on to form The CW. Prior to the formation of The CW, Kansas City's only other network affiliation was with ABC affiliate KDVR (channel 10). KCNE was the only station in the market to carry The CW at that time (until 2006 when The WB moved to sister station KDEN-TV). That year, The WB and The CW decided to withdraw their networks from cable. In 1991, KCNE began carrying the programming of independent station WPNT (channel 63) in Green Bay, Wisconsin, due to its proximity. That allowed the station to expand its network coverage to include all of northeastern Colorado. KCNE was branded as "The
