In the 1960's, China was desperate for a space program, but the country's poor economy would not allow the program to advance. Things began to change in 1964, when the First National Congress of the Communist Party of China. a party that would rule the country for the next decades, with the Second National Congress being held later that year. The party also claimed to govern China, unifying the country and uniting it under one government.[5] The Second National Congress also changed China's government system, replacing the Chairman and Vice Chairman system with the Standing Committee system. A Standing Committee for the first time brought together the leadership of the party and the government, becoming a one-party state.[5] Previous title: 颜色革命 in Titles in English: Color Revolution: Game of the Future. The conflict escalated as the Soviet Union, China, and the United States began to prepare
