The adventure of modern man 20 July 2015 Haaretz In a new documentary entitled "The Adventure of Modern Man", four famous personalities travel through our times and meet with some remarkable people. The documentary includes the show "The Adventure of Modern Man" in which Eli Yaffa, Miriam Weitz, Arie Cohele, Mati Weiner visit famous people around the world. When they are asked why they decided to visit the world's most famous places, the people who are interviewed in the documentary answer that they want to be able to tell people about their accomplishments at a later stage in life. Eli Yaffa's tour guide for the new program "The Adventure of Modern Man", has explained that he wants to see all the places and meet the people through the special lenses that his profession allows him to see the world through. During a visit to the ancient site of the Greek city of Mycenae, the former prime minister Ehud Barak, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 2005, shared with Yaffa his feelings as a young immigrant from the Soviet Union, who will someday be the prime minister of Israel: "It made me realize that the world is an excellent place, that there is no place better than here and that we are also part of this world." Yaffa stated that he wanted to do "a real adventure", something that would be memorable to him, and that's what the "Adventure of Modern Man" has been for him. For his entire tour, Yaffa said that he intended to come to Jerusalem on a regular basis. He said, "I don't come here just to visit, I come here to study and I came to come here because I feel that this is the center of the world. I want to come here to study the history of the world." The "Adventure of Modern Man" will be released on Amazon. In the documentary, the entertainer, the interviewer and the doctor Jonathan King, meet with his friend Rob Levitan, who wrote two books together with King: "Crazy Wisdom" and "Fool's Gold." The conversations with Yaffa are full of good humor and through his words, we feel the glory of Jerusalem and that the city is where the promise of eternal life is.
