Using a series of advanced algorithms, FIFA® 22's 'HyperMotion' technology collects and analyses the motion of the player's body, combining it with information from cameras and sensors to track a player's every move. By using this data, "HyperMotion" can create advanced animations in-game, meaning players move more like life, and collisions are more responsive and accurate. "The 'HyperMotion' technology comes from the idea of recreating the most intense and authentic moments in-game," FIFA Technical Director Jürgen Vindor said. "By focusing on the evolution of player movement, FIFA 22 will immerse players in a new level of storytelling." New, customizable Player Data The 'Player Data' feature allows you to build a football personality for players, creating profiles based on an individual's unique attributes and traits. "Players are now on an individual level as well as a collective level. Now players can combine their attributes to build a unique identity. This is unprecedented for a football game." Improved Player Insights The "Player Insights" feature gives you deeper insights into the players around you. "The off-ball actions of players including Interceptions, Take-ons and Recoveries are now included in the statistics," Jürgen Vindor said. "The statistics also now show players through crowds - and you can now see who is influencing which players." The camera mode has been overhauled, and new animations have been added to the game, offering the world's finest goalkeepers and defenders a more realistic reaction. The game's graphics engine is now fully 3D and includes animation-driven player models, new animations, enhanced lighting and improved crowds.

FIFA, the world's best-selling sports video game franchise, is known for its immersive atmosphere, authentic roster of player names and play styles, and unparalleled connection with the sport. FIFA is the most popular sports video game franchise of all time, having sold more than 200 million units. FIFA is the world's best-selling sports video game franchise. Players have been able to enjoy FIFA games ever since FIFA 89 for the Sega Genesis launched in March of 1989. However, until EA Sports made its foray into this growing sports genre in 1994, FIFA games were a niche product with limited audience. Thanks to the efforts of EA Sports, though, a new gaming generation has now come of age, and the franchise has experienced exponential growth. Check out the FIFA wiki for more information about what's happening with FIFA, including stats and facts, news, our awards and history. What's New in FIFA 22?

Anchor Player EA FOOTBALL has been brought to life with anchoring, a new feature that lets you activate a player with a controlled pass at the moment he wants to take possession. Interactive Skills X You'll now see players' dynamic movement animations and skills like X-Factor, Pulverize, and so on. We've also enhanced gameplay in pro game modes, improved key performance indicators, and made improvements to goalies. As a reminder, FIFA 19 had a major update where we added new ball physics and ball physics improvements for all pitch types. We've also made improvements to a number of gameplay elements and fine-tuned the feel of the game in a variety of ways. The Move to ESPN+ We're very excited to announce that FIFA 22 will be on ESPN+ when it launches on September 13th. You'll be able to watch all the matches from the Premier League and La Liga with replays of every game, as well as make-up games if your team is selected for a tie, and watch key matches like FA Cup and Europa League. Features: Anchoring Anchoring was introduced into FIFA in FIFA 19, and we've put a lot of work into making this new feature much more useful. When you control an attacking player, you can decide whether to pass him in or pass him to, and pass him into the player that you pre-selected at the moment you
