The Weird West is full of grim and twisted trails, where the boogeyman isn't just a story parents tell misbehaving children. Dark paths lead from open prairie to abandoned mines, run by beasts gone rogue or bent on their own ends. Those who tread these trails face dangers more grim and immediate than the denizens of the Weird West were prepared for. The town of Shady Vale is a dangerous place to live, but its residents know no fear. Even so, they can't always count on the Night Patrons from the Darklands to protect them—or even survive when they do. Grim Prairie Trails rounds up 19 of these horrors. Best of all, each monster includes a full Savage Tale so it won't take long to get on the trail. Best mind what's lurkin' around the next bend, amigo! Subtitled: "Are We Almost There Yet?" Guest Writer Ben Turner Deadlands Reloaded: Grim Prairie Tales is also available as a standalone

Pixelbook and a Pixel Slate. They are too different from one another. And that's a good thing. The first thing you're going to realize when you read the specifications of the two devices is that they are very similar. Both Pixelbooks have the same 12.3-inch 1280 x 2160

Features Key:

- Description: 20 missions/levels
- 60 rounds of blood-guzzling arcade action
- Use keyboard, mouse, controller, or simple touchscreen controls
- Hints for each level
- Optionally take on the bonus scenario challenge

How to play:

Scroll bar hover attack:

- Click on a pincer cell
- Click on the cell closest to the mouse pointer
- The pincers will come at once or at odd intervals to attack the cell clicked on
- If the player is successful, the attacking pincers will return to the original position and the point total will increase

Slow attacks:

- Click on a cell
- This allows the pincers to come at a slower rate than normal

Fast attacks:

- Click on a cell
- This allows the pincers to come at a faster rate than normal

Multiplayer Help:

- If the opponent is hostile, he will not attack your creatures when they try to leave their current cell.
- If the only cell to the left of your creatures is hostile, then the creatures will attack that cell before leaving the current cell. (The only exception is if there are enemy hoppers in the path)

What's new in Shuttle Siege:

STS-77 Returning from STS-75 in December 2002, STS-77 (December 3, 2002, 3:39am EST) launched the SGN-C, the first of the Air Force's next generation space-based infrared sensors. On 3 December 2002, at approximately 10:50am, the crew was notified that the SGC was scheduled for launch. Approximately 17 minutes after liftoff, the crew was notified the launch was "rolling." After confirming with the system controllers that the crew was OK, a decision was made for the engine to be throttled back to 350,000 pounds, resulting in an extended launch for the crew. The "stall" alarm sounded and the crew quickly responded to the first of 12 re-start attempts, which was successful. The SGC failed a primary command and the crew activated the secondary engine. A few seconds later the SGN-C began to drop away and the crew re-armed the launch system. About 21 minutes after launch, with a propellant burn rate of 1,500 pounds per second, the SGN-C initially separated from its support module STS-105 at a rate of 8 feet per second. Soon, the crew gained sight of the SGN-C to determine its attitude. The cape was closed and an electrical "hook" was used to capture the SGN-C and to allow crews to perform activities to prepare for the upcoming rendezvous. At 0929 EST, the SGN-C's drogue chute was released. The drogue chute was released 2 minutes later and the main chute was released just 8 seconds later. A few seconds after the main chute was deployed, the STS-105 crew lost communications with the crew of STS-77. During the phasing of the rendezvous, close overpass rates were in excess of 16 feet per second, which cannot be made safe with the crew time remaining. Consequently, the mission was declared "scrubbed." That day, space shuttle Columbia was the victim of a serious accident during its re-entry, which resulted in the loss of the vehicle and the lives of seven astronauts. 200214121821: The SGCs are attached to the External Tank.
