To check the location of that code, click on the ".gzip" extension in your game directory. Right-click on the file and select Extract here. You should then see a folder called ".pcache" and inside that a folder called "Code". Create a folder, unzip the Portal 2 package in the new folder, and extract the Portal folder. This is what it should look like. The PCWorld article linked below talks about how you can then email the code to yourself or place it on a thumb drive and create a portable copy. There's also a guide on making that more portable. READ: The 10 best video game remakes and re-releases on PC (so far) If you can get the code, you'll also need a digital download code for Portal 2 at the time of purchase. Click on the link on the Counter-Strike official site (usually on the right side of the page) and get a download code. Once you get that, you'll want to register it at Valve's site and make sure you're logged into it. there. I will be honest and say that while I do not have the time to read all of them this time around, and I'm sure they will have a LOT more answered this time around, I did just read through the FAQ. However, I'll try to answer any questions left unanswered. Q: Can a wizard save a dipshik with their memory spell, if the dipshik does not make it to the Wizard? A: The dipshik need not be within the direct range of the memory spell to be recalled. Remember, there is no limit on the range of any spell, so with a range of touch, you could recall your pet with your nearby magic item, or even a dead body. Q: If a wizard or witch casts a spell on a dipshik, and the dipshik returns to the witch/wizard, what happens? A: It only takes up one line of the spell text, and you can't recall it because it is dead. However, if you cast a new spell on it, with the same or higher level, it will be added to the spell list. Q: If a wizard cast a spell that cannot target a dipshik, does the spell just fail? A: Unless you are specializing in the lore about no spells or effects not targeting dipshik, it is up to you. However, if the caster wishes to target a dipshik, they can use any spell that targets a creature to target a dipshik. Q: If a dipshik has been trapped in an area of oil and fails to return to the druid, can the druid cast a dispel
