According to EA, motion capture data has never been used in a FIFA game before. “It’s the first generation of gameplay we’ve been able to develop using this technology,” said David Rutter, EA’s Senior Producer on FIFA 22. “It’s by far the biggest change that’s ever happened to the game, and it’s going to feel like something very different.” “It really gives you the feeling of being a part of the game, and adding the touch of real players’ movements into what we do with the physics in FIFA,” said Jonathan Shigeki, Senior Designer at EA on FIFA 22. New Player Personalities FIFA 22 introduces nine all-new Player Personalities. Four of them are FIFA Iconic Players, who in this iteration have been developed specifically for this game. They include seven-time winner of the FIFA Ballon d’Or Ronaldo (PC/PS4), 10-time runner-up to the FIFA Ballon d’Or Messi (PC/PS4), five-time World Cup Champion Germany (PC/PS4) and five-time winners of the North American Soccer League (PC/PS4). The other five Player Personalities are heroes of the 22 FIFA World Cup™ teams. The new player characters include 1990 FIFA World Cup Champion Italy, hosts France, three-time FIFA World Cup winning Argentina, 2002 FIFA World Cup finalist Portugal, and 2005 FIFA World Cup winners Germany. New Player Personalities 7-time World Champion: Ronaldo Unique moves: Creates goal-scoring opportunities and makes attacking runs with deft, versatile play Always looking to score: Has an ability to find scoring opportunities by working well with his teammates and taking intelligent shots Style: Plays in two distinctive ways. He can dribble past opponents and strike powerfully from just outside the area, or he can cut inside and weave past defenders with skillful dribbling and elegant one-on-one moves. “Ronaldo is a player who has the entire game in his hands. He’s fast, he’s skilled, and his goals count,” said Matt Rebholz, Executive Producer on FIFA 22. “His unique style and deadly finishing ability make him a true global phenomenon.” For more about

I'm not an expert in batch scripting, so please help me. I'm able to add custom metadata with Windows Explorer or with exiftool on the command line, but I can't find a way of doing this in batch. My first attempt was something like this (and this was nearly the script I'm using): @echo off :: Author (default) echo [File Author] for %%a in (1) do (for %%b in ("%a*") do (echo [%%b] bc9d6d6daa

What's new in Fifa 22:

- Player Traits - Intelligent system continually analyses player performances and assign values based on match context. Players can also be moved towards, or away from, certain positions by their Traits. All traits are assignable and scalable, so you can position your players as you wish across the pitch. You can also use the same profession combinations of traits, roles and interests across all campaign seasons. Traits affect attributes like pace, passing, shooting, tackling, tackling and interceptions.
- Tactics - Give your team more freedom when tactically setting up play, for example, to mimic the 'get the ball in the final third' tactics that Jurgen Klopp favors. Favour a fluid 4-2-3-1 or build up play through a single-striker tactic, which works especially well when your team is in possession.
- New Player Roles - Give your players more tactical choices by offering them up to five base roles, with more on the way. What's your preference - attacker, in-possession defender or centre-back? Whether you want speed, power, sprinting, tackling or ball-playing, there's a role for you. Choose your player role as you customise a custom-built roster.
