A preliminary investigation into the effect of zygomatic advancement with Möllen bone graft on facial contour and aesthetic outcomes in cleft lip and palate patients. The aim of this study was to investigate the aesthetic outcomes and facial contour changes in cleft lip and palate patients treated with zygomatic advancement and post-surgical intermaxillary fixation with Möllen bone graft. The sample comprised of 10 participants (six females and four males; average age 25.8 years) selected from a group of 50 cleft patients who underwent zygomatic advancement with Möllen bone graft. The aesthetic and orthodontic aspects of each participant's facial profile were evaluated by 3D photographs and observational drawings made before treatment and post-surgical intervention. The aesthetic evaluations were performed by an independent assessor using photographic scales (attractiveness, symmetry, emotional expression, harmony, and balance). Post-surgical intermaxillary fixation with Möllen bone graft was evident in all participants, with an average of 95.8% of bone graft volume present at 1 week post-operatively and 100% at 1 month. Overall, the facial contour measurements revealed significant improvement in a number of variables after post-surgical intermaxillary fixation with Möllen bone graft. Considering the mean improvements for symmetry (P=0.001) and balance (P=0.000), it is proposed that post-surgical intermaxillary fixation with Möllen bone graft provides improved facial symmetry and balance in cleft lip and palate patients. Fast scanning electronic microscopy to evaluate mesenchymal stem cell nuclear chromatin structure. The aim of this study was to develop a protocol for the fast scanning electronic microscopy (F-SEM) analysis of mesenchymal stem cell (MSC) nuclear chromatin structure on plastic cryosections. To this purpose, cells were seeded on plastic, fixed for 10 min with glutaraldehyde, dehydrated with ethanol and critical point dried. Two types of analyses have been performed
