To study the diagnostic and prognostic value of sialic acid quantification in patients with prostate cancer. Sialic acid levels were measured using specific fluorescence detection in the sera of 30 patients with benign prostatic hyperplasia, 30 patients with prostate cancer and 30 healthy men. The prostate-specific antigen (PSA) concentration was determined in all subjects in order to correlate sialic acid concentration with the PSA values. The sialic acid level was markedly increased in the sera of cancer patients compared with the benign prostatic hyperplasia patients and with the control group (mean +/- SEM: 45.1 +/- 8.3, 30.9 +/- 3.8 and 11.2 +/- 1.3 mg/L, respectively, p = 0.0012). No correlation was observed between sialic acid levels and PSA concentration in patients with prostate cancer. The sialic acid level was markedly increased in the sera of patients with prostate cancer. Sialic acid has no diagnostic value c6a93da74d
