In the case of Sirius, you would expect that we would still have some difficulty in downloading and uploading ... and this time they were right. We ended up having some serious loading and unloading problems. If we could squeeze even one shuttle in, it would have helped by now. On the last day I had a chance, I met with our chief engineer. "What's next?" I asked. "Over the next few days you get to watch us do the loading and unloading."
