Urinary tract infections in patients with recent first-trimester abortions: systematic review and meta-analysis. To explore the effect of recent first-trimester abortion on the risk of urinary tract infections and to assess the effectiveness of antibiotic prophylaxis. A systematic review and meta-analysis was performed. Eligible studies were identified by searching PubMed, Embase, and Cochrane Library through 20 June 2016. An analysis was performed using a random-effects model to estimate the odds ratio (OR) with 95% confidence interval (CI). Our pooled data from four studies showed that the incidence rate ratio of urinary tract infections after a first-trimester abortion was 1.63 (95% CI 1.29-2.06). The risk of urinary tract infection was increased by an average of 8% in patients receiving a first-trimester abortion (OR 1.08, 95% CI 1.02-1.15). The overall risk of infection seemed to be reduced by 40% in patients receiving antibiotic prophylaxis compared with those not receiving antibiotic prophylaxis (OR 0.60, 95% CI 0.48-0.76). Antibiotic prophylaxis may reduce the risk of urinary tract infections in patients who undergo a first-trimester abortion.-----BEGIN CERTIFICATE REQUEST-----
