Wi-Fi Analyzer, developed by Kevin Yuan of farproc, tops this list, using more... try building a coverage map of your home or office wireless network. To add to the application, you will need network access if the application does not work without it. However, the app will work without an internet connection. With "Wi-Fi Analyzer" you can find your position in your area based on the Wi-Fi hotspots connected to your network and the frequency. It will also show you which wireless networks and Wi-Fi hotspots are available for your network, as well as their MAC address. This information can be very handy in certain situations.
