Archives Category: Academy Award for Technical Achievement winnersPancreatic lipase activity: relation to alpha-amylase activity and glucose tolerance. The relationships between pancreatic lipase and alpha-amylase activity and glucose tolerance were studied in patients of varied origin. The alpha-amylase/lipase ratio and the total amylase activity were found to be decreased in the presence of gastric vagotomy, but normal in patients with pancreas divisum. No correlation was found between either pancreatic lipase or total amylase activity and blood glucose levels in any of the groups studied.Q: check the input/content of a form for the existence of a specific string I am trying to check the input of a form for the existence of a specific string like this: if(!get submit($ POST['number']) && strpos($ POST['titre'], ''. $que. ")!= false) function get submit($input) { if (isset($input['number']) && isset($input['titre'])) { return $input; } else { return false; } } I also have tried variations using! (not) and the fact that strpos returns the position of a string in a string I want to check to see if the content of the form is exactly $que, and nothing else. if(!get submit($ POST['number']) && strpos($ POST['titre'], '$que')!= false) Any help will be greatly appreciated A: I'm surprised this isn't working as you expected it to. You have a lot of syntax error which are the root of your problems. This should work better. if(!isset($ POST['number']) ||!isset($ POST['titre'])){ //no post var set }elseif(!strpos($ POST['titre'], '$que')){ //strpos returned false }else{ //stuff } c6a93da74d
